FRAGMENTS OF THE EARLY HISTORY OF OHIO COUNTY.

By H. D. TAYLOR.

CHAPTER XXI.

The next two resident lawyers of the Hartford bar were Samuel Tevis and Moses Cummings. Tevis came from Shelby county, and only practiced at the Hartford bar a few years, and again returned to Shelbyville, and was clerk of that court for many years. While in Hartford his habits were rather dissipated, but he was looked upon as a young lawyer of promise, and got a fair portion of patronage. Moses Cummings came to Hartford at quite an early period. Few men of his period were his superiors in intellectual endowments, or real moral worth. But he had one vice, and one virtue in excess; both of which stood in his path and barred his way to honor and distinction. His vice was intemperance, his virtue in excess was the most consummate modesty and want of self-reliance. Charles Henderson, the clerk of our court for many years, was often heard to say that he never heard Moses Cummings say a foolish thing in court; and Philip Thompson, a competitor at the bar, used to say that he would as soon have Cummings to draw up the proceedings in a suit as John Marshall, then chief justice of the United States. Yet, with all these legal and intellectual qualifications, he would resort to almost any subterfuge rather than speak in public; and there is little doubt but his ineptitude was partly attributable to this cause. Litigants love to hear their virtues ventilated, and their adversaries vilified, even at the expense of their pockets. Hence, most clients will pass by a man of profound legal knowledge, and employ a fussy, second-rate attorney, if he is a fluent speaker. This was Cummings' fate. Men would consult with him as to their legal rights, and then go to other lawyers to do their speaking. However, there are still more evidences left among the old records of our court of the chastity, force and perspicuity of his intellect. Whether acting as surveyor or commissioner of court, or attorney, every instrument of writing drawn by him is remarkable for its perspicuity, clearness and chaste brevity. In society he was mild, gentle and retiring; never assuming the lead in conversation; never thrusting his views and opinions upon others, and always expressed his ideas in the fewest possible words.

A story is told of his attending a party at the house of old Harrison Taylor. Old Bunt Jane, as she was familiarly called, was remarkably social and talkative, and, observing the young lawyer's extreme modesty and retiring manner, tried several times to interest him and engage him in conversation, but meeting with such little success, she exclaimed: "Well, well, they say your name is Moses, and you are a young lawyer; have you got a brother Aaron to do your talking? I think you will have to have one before you make a great lawyer of yourself." She was a shrewd observer of human character, and her predictions proved too true; for with all his intellectual and moral worth he never reached fame or distinction, but remained poor, gaining only a meagre support by practicing law, surveying and sometimes teaching school, and it is to be regretted that he did not devote his whole time and attention to the latter calling, for few men excelled him in the art of conveying his ideas to the meanest capacity; and although he seldom resorted to the use of the rod, yet the continued smile playing upon his countenance, and jet black eyes, seemed to be foreboding disaster and punishment to the indolent and naughty, and appropriation and love to the timid and diligent.

We have endeavored to portray the man in his sober hours, but when partially intoxicated he was quite different—talkative, witty, and sarcastic, bold and daring, but never aggressive or quarrelsome unless ill-treated; always polite and good natured in his most withering sarcasms, never uttering a word that would be out of place in the most polite society. In a word, his brilliant fancy, wit and sarcasm, was far more enjoyed by his best friends than his retiring, unassuming modesty while sober, and his drinking was no doubt too often winked at, if not encouraged, by many who should have been his better friends. He removed to Davies county, where he resided many years, and finally went to Texas, where he died.

A striking contrast to the foregoing person was Philip Thompson, the next resident lawyer at the Hartford bar. By no means the superior, if even the equal of Moses Cummings in education or intellect, of small stature and a stammering impediment in his speech, yet by the force of indomitable will and untiring industry, he finally rose to wealth and distinction.

He came to Hartford when quite a youth, but not like too many young lawyers of the present day, who consider themselves full-grown when they get their license signed, he was seldom seen upon the streets, but remained a close student. It was said to be a frequent occurrence when he was applied to for legal advice, to postpone his opinion until a future day, and during the interval examine and scrutinize all the authorities in his reach. Thus he soon acquired the reputation of a safe and reliable adviser. His devotion to his client's interest was untiring—ever ready to fight the bitter end, either intellectually or physically, for success. Even the stammering or halting that sometimes occurred in his delivery, he seemed to have turned to his advantage. Like the pause between the vivid lightning-flash and the thunder-clap, his stammering seemed but the gathering of an impassioned burst of eloquence, which followed.

He was also remarkably acute in his judgment of human character; and during the days of our early practice, when jurors were summoned indiscriminately from the crowd, was celebrated for his tact in selecting jurors. His devotion to the interest of his clients, and in selecting jurors and impassioned eloquence, soon gave him fame as a criminal lawyer, and it was not many years until he acquired a lucrative practice.

He took an active part in the war of 1812, and besides volunteering in several cavalry excursions into the Indian territory, he went with Governor Shelby's forces to Canada. The scene that occurred when the company was organized for Ohio county, is still fresh in the recollection of the author of these sketches. Ohio county was then "no part of Union," but was composed of McLean, Butler, Grayson, Breckinridge, Hancock and the whole of Davies, and it seemed like all the men and boys were assembled in town that day. After the company was made up, it was formed into line for the purpose of electing officers. It was arranged that as each officer was to be elected, the candidates were to march out in front of the line and march down it, each soldier following the man of his choice. The captain was a fine looking specimen of the Kentucky hunter, dressed in a hunting shirt, was elected without much opposition. The election of lieutenant was then announced, and Thompson marched to the front, and made a speech full of wit, humor and patriotism, but did not get a chance to walk to the head of the line, for several stout brawny volunteers broke rank, reared him upon their shoulders, and marched along the ranks, the whole of whom followed with shouts of acclamation.

When Shelby's army reached the lakes it was necessary to leave most of the horses behind. A large peninsula afforded them range and pasture, by placing sentinels across a narrow neck of land. It was necessary to detail men to perform this important duty, and from the confidence that the superior officers had in Tyler's vigilance and prudence, his company was detailed for that purpose; but Thompson was indignant at the order, and resolved to follow the main army as a "high private." Jumping into a baggage transport he reached the Canada shore, and although much troubled with rheumatism, with which he was more or less afflicted through life, he followed the main army on foot, and was the only soldier from Ohio county who participated in the glory of the battle of the Thames.

He was elected to the Legislature, and served the session that Davies was formed, and shortly afterwards removed to Owensboro, the county being called after Jo Davies, and the town after Owen, two heroes who fell fighting for their country during the war of 1812.

Mr. Thompson was by no means an office-seeker, and was only once elected to Congress, and was present when John Q. Adams was elected by that body. It is the duty of the biographer to record as well the failings as the virtues of distinguished men; in order that their failings may be shunned, as well as their virtues followed. Although the subject of this sketch had most of the qualities that should exalt men in society, he was extremely high-tempered, hasty and exclaimable, and when he conceived that he had been insulted or injured, his temper was perfectly ungovernable. This failing grew with age, and besides several personal difficulties, led first to the almost fatal duel between himself and Triplett, and finally to the fatal encounter which resulted in his lamentable death.

The deep, exciting anxiety expressed at the result of his duel with Triplett, and the intense gloom and sorrow that his friends in Ohio heard of his death, proved that while a citizen of their county he had merited their esteem.

We do not allude to these two events with the view of censuring the memory of the dead. We wish only to warn the rising generation against ungovernable temper and hasty bursts of passion, which, if uncontrolled, however upright and honorable they may live, may lead to like fatal results.

Fort George Island—a winter resort at the mouth of the St. John's River, Florida, which is coming into fashion—is the subject of an enthusiastic writer in Scribner for September, who relates the following:

The young owner of the Island, cultivating hundreds of acres and raising enormous crops of cotton and sugar, used to build schooners in a ship-yard of his own, and imported slaves directly from the African coast, selling to his neighbors such as he did not want. He was unmarried. Perhaps no one of the daughters of the neighboring planters could be persuaded to share the lonely life which could hardly have appeared attractive in any woman's eyes; perhaps he preferred a life of freedom and independence. However that may have been, he was in the habit of going occasionally to Africa himself, and of buying his slaves from the native chiefs, who disposed in this way of their prisoners of war.

During one of these visits, while engaged in bargaining, he was struck with the grace and beauty of the chief's young daughter, a child of ten years old. He proposed to buy her, but she was a favorite child and her father could not part with her. Persuasions were for a time unavailing, but at length the savage father, unable to resist the glitter of the white man's gold, agreed to part with his child upon condition that she should be treated with consideration and brought up as becomes a king's daughter. The planter promised, and, strange to say, he kept his word. She was kindly cared for and well educated, and in the course of time became the planter's lawful wife.

She had, according to tradition, with the exception of a dark skin, none of the usual negro characteristics. Her hand- some features were regular, her hair smooth, her presence dignified and commanding. Her husband seemed never to have regretted his unusual course, and her influence over her captive countrymen was unbounded. In addition to her position and superior intelligence was the consideration of her native rank, which to them was a source of unquestioned right.

The establishment was kept up in almost princely style. The sons were sent to England to be educated; for the daughters French and English governesses were procured, and established in separate houses near the mansion; while artisans of various kinds were constantly employed making quite a large community aside from the hundreds of slaves upon the Island. And over all this, in her husband's long and frequent absence, reigned our dusky princess, as absolute in her native wilds. She had a strong and powerful mind, and womanly kindness and sympathy as well. One old negro, who died some time since, so old that no one could remember him other than old, used to tell how he was brought over when young to this Island, where he had lived ever since, and how he and others, sick and exhausted, were ministered to by the missis own hands, and how they always love her and always prayed, Lord bless Ma'am Hannah! Every morning as she stood upon this very spot, the hands passed in review before her, each gazing with his driver, going to their work. She inspected them all, picking out such as were unfit for labor, and sending them to the hospital or to lighter tasks; and every night in the same spot she heard a report of the day, examined into all complaints, and with strict justice adjudged each offender's punishment; and without her order not a lash could be given.

A Great Diamond Thief.

A man living under the name of Moos died recently in Woolwich, England. He was the valet of the late Duke of Brunswick, and stole the diamonds of his master. They were very numerous and valuable, and the theft, which occurred about eight years ago, made such a noise at the time. The jewels were in an iron box, fastened with a lock very difficult to open. The box was placed in a cavity in the wall of the duke's bedroom, and the place was hidden by the silken covering which decorated the entire walls of the department. The duke carried the keys of the box and the wall door perpetually in a belt, which never left his waist except during his toilet. Nevertheless, on returning to his chamber one evening, he found diamonds strewn upon his carpet, a portion of the diamonds, valued at over a million of dollars, taken from the box. Shaw had also disappeared, but was afterwards arrested in Bologna, France, and condemned to twenty years of imprisonment and hard labor at Cayenne. In three years he managed to make his escape from that, and took refuge in England, where he lived incognito and very privately.

The Size of London.

London covers nearly 700 square miles. It numbers more than 4,000,000 inhabitants. It comprises 100,000 foreigners from every quarter of the globe. It contains more Roman Catholics than Rome itself; more Jews than the whole of Palestine; more Irish than Dublin; more Scotch than Edinburgh; more Welshmen than Cardiff. Has a birth in it every five minutes; has seven accidents every day in its 7000 miles of streets; has 123 persons every day, and 45,000 annually added to its population; has 117,000 habitual criminals on its police register; has 23,000 prostitutes; 38,000 drunkards annually brought before its magistracy.

Art Publishing.

Few people are aware of the wonderful progress that art has made in this country during the last quarter of a century. It is but a few decades since, that those who desired to beautify and adorn their homes, were obliged to depend almost entirely on foreign artists. But such a state of affairs in this age of progress and improvement could not last long with the great American people. Genius from the East to the West, from the North to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, answered the demand for beauty, taste and refinement, and to-day our leading artists are not surpassed by the leading modern masters of Art in Europe.

Great Art publishing establishments have sprung up, and by various processes the finest and most expensive paintings are reproduced in all their elegance and beauty, and at a price within the means of the masses. So that no one need be without the refining influences of beautiful pictures at home.

Among the progressive leading Art Publishing firms of the country, we take pleasure in mentioning George Stinson & Co., of Portland Maine; they were among the first in the business, and we can only understand the colossal proportions their trade has assumed by remembering that this is a great and mighty Nation of nearly fifty million people. We cannot better illustrate the magnitude of their business than to state the amount of money paid by them for postage stamps during the year 1876; we have the figures direct from the firm or we should think there was some mistake. They paid for postage stamps during the year 1876, thirty-three thousand one hundred and four dollars and ninety-two cents (33,104.92) and, in connection with this it should be remembered that only the small orders were sent by mail, the larger going by express and freight.

George Stinson & Co's, agents are to be found in every State in the Union and Dominion of Canada, and in every county with scarcely an exception. Long since, this enterprising firm recognized the value of printer's ink judiciously used in advertising, and they inform us that without it they could never have extended their business as it is today, in three times the number of years. A short time since they paid in a single day twenty-four thousand dollars ($24,000) on a contract for newspaper advertising. They evidently long since found the road to success and have neither turned to the right nor to the left. Three things are necessary for eminent success in business. First, standard honest goods that the people generally need and desire, —let them be best, whatever the line of business. Second, let your prices be reasonable—as low as possible. Third, let the people know what you have, and what you can do, by liberal and persistent advertising, and you will find low prices, made known and proved, will bring trade that will give a larger income than can be made in any other way.

Had Example.

[Frankfort Yeoman.]
The boys of the country are being ruined by the mob spirit. The boy naturally follows the mob. He gets a glimpse of power and a taste of plunder. He likes to see a big fire, to hear the crack of a pistol, and to see a poor wretch swinging to a lamp post. These things are novel and exciting to him. They educate him. He sees the crowd do it, and he thinks the people do it. This is a people's government, and what the people do must be right. Hundreds of boys during the late riots took a part in the unlawful and criminal acts of the strikers. They caught the infection of the mob spirit, and were in sympathy with the very worst characters. They will remember the wild scenes at Pittsburgh, Chicago, and other places, and some of these days, as veterans, they will appear to lead other riots and disorders. What a pity it is that such fearful lessons are given to the youth of the country. The impression is cherished in and never departs. Those who saw mobs successful are hopelessly ruined. The triumph will never be forgotten.

Editor Herald:

Nothing of very great importance has occurred since our last.
Holbrook & Fields have sold their stock of Drugs to Dr. Thomas Massie. The Doctor has had considerable experience in the drug business, and is fully competent to do the necessary mixing, weighing, pounding, mashing &c. with as great precision as any of his predecessors. We wish him success.

The merchants are all doing good business notwithstanding the hard times. They are receiving some new goods this week.

Miss Pauline Godshaw, of Louisville, and Miss Cecilia Godshaw and sister, of Owensboro, are visiting their relative, Mrs. Schwab, of Buford. Do not fear, young Americas, they can talk to you in sweet English. They are pleasant ladies, and we wish them a pleasant time while at Buford, and the Angel of Peace to go with them when they leave our town. The farmers are all rejoicing that it has rained.

We hear there is considerable sickness in the country at this time.
As agriculture is the basis of all other business, and its prosperity is necessary to secure success to any other vocation, we close by wishing the farmers a general success this year. Darn.

Letter from No. 8.

No. 8, Ohio County, Ky.,
Aug. 27th, 1877.
Editor Herald:

Having seen nothing in the Herald for some time, I have come to the conclusion that "Felix," our regular correspondent, has neglected his duty, so I thought I would fill up the omission with the following:
The crops in this section have been damaged extensively by the dry weather; but, owing to the splendid rains we had last week, there will be considerable outcome after all, especially in tobacco.

The health of this community is very good for this season of the year.
Brother Volney Taylor and myself returned home yesterday from the convention held at Hamilton School House, where we had been as representatives from Taylor Lodge No. 8, I. O. G. T., one among the oldest Lodges in the State. We again tender our thanks to the people of Hamilton and vicinity for the kindness shown us while there.

Our esteemed friends, C. Wand and Silas Taylor are visiting relatives and friends at White Plains. We hope the "boys" will have a jolly time while there and a safe journey home.
G. C. WESTERFIELD.

Communicated.

I notice in your issue of 22nd, a communication signed "A Teacher," which I think is calculated to create a wrong impression, and in fact, to do a great deal of mischief.

There seems to be considerable misapprehension in the minds of many as to the design of an institute and the manner of conducting it.

An institute is not designed to teach arithmetic, grammar nor any other branch, but to improve those who are already sufficiently acquainted with the matter, in their manner of imparting that knowledge to others. Therefore a lecture before an institute or any other subject than "how to teach," is time misappropriated and wasted.

I approve heartily of the institute. I have never voluntarily absented myself from its meetings since its establishment in the county, and say—emphatically, truthfully say that I never attended one without returning to my school strengthened, buoyed and a better teacher by reason of having attended. "A teacher" says that he is not willing that such a humble as the last institute should be imposed upon the teachers, etc. I say that of all the institutes I ever attended, I received most benefit from that same last one. I pronounce it the most practical and beneficial institute I ever attended, and thank our commissioner for procuring the services of such eminent educators as Col. Allen and Prof. Bartholomew. I was present, though "A teacher" was not. I do not regret any trouble or expense that I was at to attend it.

He calls the institute "a thing," so do I—a noble thing—a thing by which I am made a better scholar—a better teacher. "A dollar making machine"—yes, for me in the future. "A show"—it showed me how to do better work; and a teacher who does not want to do better work for the love of it, is not worthy the name.

He complains of the imported talent; he must remember that he did not attend, and what could we do in the premises? "They took up the time in discussions," that of right belonged to the teachers." In this, "teacher" was mistaken. The teachers were frequently urged both by the lecturers and commissioner to discuss, but owing to their inborn modesty, they only sat back and cussed and would not discuss a bit. I am glad of the law, it has benefited me.

Let the teachers attend every institute with a willing and teachable mind and "he is only a poor devil of a teacher," will cease to be thrown in our teeth.

Bradley's Extraordinary Vote.

[Albany Argus.]
The exposure by the New York Sun of the way in which Bradley the unjust Judge, turned from right to wrong between dusk and dawn, on counting the vote of Florida, has only confirmed in the people's mind what every body believed before. No one has thought for a moment that the famous—or infamous—eight decided honestly in behalf of Hayes. The pretence that there was even a semblance of right in his claim is preposterous. The corrupt carpet-baggers at the South, the unscrupulous leaders who had managed the Republican campaign, the desperate railroad and subsidy jobbers who infest Washington, combined to keep Mr. Tilden out of the office to which he was rightfully entitled; and to do this, after the preparation of crime upon crime, they obtained Bradley's vote by the most extraordinary means. Bradley is the Judge who astonished Chief Justice Chase by turning the property of the Memphis El Paso road over to the Texas Pacific; and his record altogether is so odious as to corroborate the statement that these jobbers through the Hayes until they induced a change of an opinion written in behalf of Tilden to one for Hayes.

There must have been some strong reason impelling the terror-stricken thieves to this course. Was it only the fear of Tilden? Did they simply count upon the negative favor of Hayes, or did they expect him not only to prosecute them but entirely to favor new schemes of robbery? At least, they have escaped the scorching exposures which would have followed Tilden's inauguration. What the future will secure for them remains to be seen.

The Georgia Constitutional Convention has completed its labors and adjourned. The people vote on the adoption or rejection of the new constitution on December 12th. The important changes which have been made are the abolition of the whipping post and imprisonment for debt. Liberal provision is made for the education of both whites and blacks. A strict registration is provided for, and all taxes must be paid before the parties are entitled to vote. This provision differs from the one which we have in our city charter, where only the payment of the poll tax is required before the citizen can vote. A wholesale reduction in salaries is made as follows: Governor $3,000, Supreme Judges $2,500, Attorney General, Treasurer, Secretary of State, $2,000 each and no perquisites, per diem to members of the Legislature, $1, instead of $7, as formerly. The changes that have been made in salaries will make an annual saving to the State of $282,000. Many State officials heretofore appointed by the Governor or elected by the Legislature, will in future be elected by the people.

One very important provision, but one that will cause violent opposition from the entire railroad interest of the State, is the prohibition of perpetual charters conferring special immunities on corporations, and the right is reserved for the Legislature to regulate the freight and passenger traffic on the railroads of the State. These tariffs must be uniform according to distance.
Lobbying is made a crime, and all lobby contracts are declared void. Exemption under the homestead laws is increased to $2,500.—Lexington Press.

The young lady who said kissing was like a sewing machine because it seemed so good, evidently alluded to a sewing-machine with a feller.

Land Warrants.
Persons having land warrants to dispose of, would do well to call on
JOHN P. BARRETT.

At eleven o'clock yesterday forenoon a man walked up and down Griswold street for a few minutes, carefully scrutinizing the exterior of several banks, and finally entered one of them and deposited thirteen dollars. It was his very first dealing with a bank, and he had slanted over a trifle more than usual when I came out. About a quarter after twelve, finding that he could deposit two or three dollars more and still make his purchase, the man came down town again. The bank was closed, according to custom and the usual sign of: "Bank shut" hung against the glass. As the farmer pushed on the door he saw the sign, and he was only about ten seconds growing as pale as death. As he made another attempt to open the door a boy came along and called out: "You can't get in there—she's shut up!" "Took my thirteen dollars in and then busted!" gasped the depositor as he backed off and looked at the sign. "She'll open again at 2 o'clock," said the boy as he passed along. "I doubt it—I doubt it!" muttered the man as he wiped off the perspiration, "but I'll wait and see."

He sat down on the steps, weak, knees and chin trembling, and he didn't move an inch till 2 o'clock. When the bank opened he walked in, presented his certificate of deposit and said: "I'll be a thousand times obliged if you'll let me draw my thirteen dollars."

It was handed out and the man braced up instantaneously. Counting the money over twice, he put the bills in his wallet, walked out, and as he reached the walk he said: "That's the closest escape I ever had in my life, and I won't make a fool of myself again!"

THE WAR.

From dispatches of 3d inst., we learn the following war news:

Servia refuses to give assistance to Bosnia insurgents. Their Deputies applied here to Prince Tseretoff, who informed Prince Gortschakoff and the Grand Duke Nicholas of their demand. Prince Tseretoff, however, received a reply from his Government that Russia neither can nor wishes to assist the Bosnia insurgents. The insurgents may act according to their judgment.

The means of the insurgents are exhausted, and they are in want of everything. They intend to treat with the Turkish Government, and try to obtain permission for the Bosnia refugees living in Austria to return home unmolested, and the insurgents would then lay down their arms.

The Russian loss on the 31st of Aug. was: At Kadikoi, 7 killed and 30 wounded; at Pelist, 30 officers and 1,020 soldiers killed and wounded. The Turkish loss is enormous. Near the village of Pelist alone 300 dead bodies were counted on the 31st ult. The cannonade between Rastchuk and Giurgio is continued. No loss on the Russian side is expected.

The Turks acknowledge a loss of 7,000 men in Shipka pass. Two thousand wounded reached Adrianople yesterday.

The Turks have begun to evacuate Sukumaleh.

The commandant of Rastchuk has made a sortie with seven battalions, defeating the Russians.

Further accounts from Shumla do not confirm the report that Baker Pasha is missing. On the contrary, the Telegraph's Hassanlar special says he has been decorated with the order of the Osmanli.

It is stated that the Grand Duke Michael, commander in chief of the Russian army in Asia Minor, has assumed command of General Melnikoff's corps in Persia, that officer having been removed for exceeding his orders.

The Russians, it is reported, have evacuated Selvi.

The Duke of Edinburgh arrived at Athens on the iron-clad Sultan and visited the King and Queen. The British Government, fearing that he would seem to countenance the war party, telegraphed that he must leave immediately. He left the same evening.

Cannonading began again Saturday and continued Sunday. A prisoner states that the effective strength of most of the Russian battalions has been reduced by one-half. The Bulgarians have also suffered cruelly.

Hoover Hill Items.

Hoover Hill, Sept. 3.

Editor Herald:

As there has nothing appeared in the columns of the Herald from this point for some time, suppose we jot you down a few items for which you can publish if you deem worthy. Nothing, however, worthy of note has occurred recently, except the falling of a nice rain, in which the crops were standing in great need.

We hear of some sickness in adjacent regions, such as cholera, fever, &c. But the inhabitants of Hoover Hill, as a general thing, enjoy good health. We breathe nothing but pure atmosphere; our nostrils inhale no adventitious impurities, and consequently we have no cholera. It is true we have the headache at times, but this is occasioned by the lead pencils ascending from E. C. Hoover & Co's mill.

Miss Mollie Webb and Miss Emma King, from near Buckhorn, paid Hoover Hill a visit yesterday. Misses Mollie and Emma are very attractive and highly accomplished young ladies. Come again, girls.

Crops generally look well considering the drought. Corn is in an advanced state, and we think it will mature with another rain. Tobacco is looking well, and now getting ripe. Farmers say that the tobacco "wrens" are not so bad this year as they were last. Preparations are being made to sow a large crop of wheat this fall.

We extend our hand to the sonorous Drum, of Buford, and wish him a prosperous voyage across the storm-tossed ocean of life, and may his literary talent and soul ever brim with just sentiment as he is constantly expressing in his letters, and at the next toooting of the Horn, may the mighty Mooloo, of Newville, come up to Hoover Hill, and we will all make peace.

We had the pleasure of listening to an elegant sermon delivered by the Rev. John James, at White Oak, on the second inst. The subject was: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The subject was ably discussed and remarkably interesting to all that were present.

From the little knowledge I have of internal Revenue Accounts, I must say that Col. O. P. Johnson and his Deputies deserve much praise for the manner in which they conduct their office.

No Excuse.

[Woman's Journal.]

"No man will ever prosper who has the curse of a ruined woman upon him. The murderer of the body can be tried and executed by the world's laws, but the murderer of the soul is tried by Heaven's laws, and the execution is as sure as divine justice." Aunt Betsy said this as she folded the white flowers and beautiful girl, and put the flowers and leaves about a tiny lace beside the girl's mother. The house was hushed and there was mourning such as few people know. Half glad that the mother and child were dead, the rest of the family must perform the last office of burial and let the family name. A haunted house! A ruined home! God the architect and man the spoiler. The curse is there and the destroyer cannot escape.

INCORPORATION NOTICE.

The hotels of Hartford, for sometime past, have been the scene of quite a number of romantic weddings. On last Tuesday morning another of like manner occurred at the Hartford House. The contracting parties on this occasion were Mr. D. H. Katon and Miss Mary E. Williams. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Cook in the presence of a goodly number of guests who had gathered in to witness the happy couple pass from "darkness to light." The bride and groom have our heartiest wishes for their happiness and welfare in their voyage upon the sea of life.

One of the liveliest and most useful men in Ohio county is John A. Taylor. He is always buying up the surplus products of the county at very fair prices and finding a market for them. He will ship from Deaver Dam to-morrow two car loads of stock—hogs and cattle. We wish him the success he deserves.

Mr. B. B. Felix, who "went 'hoss' hunting some time ago, and never returned, has been heard of at Fairfield, W. We did not suppose his horses had strayed out there.

Hartford's Mammoth Picture Car will be at McHenry's Sept. 13th, and remain 10 days. Will go from there to Rockport, and then to Cynthiana. 5 pictures for 50 cents.

Louisville Trade Gossip.

Business was good last week. The stock market was looking up quite lively. There were 50 horses sold at auction at prices ranging from $25 to $100. The offerings were better than for two months before, but still not enough to supply the demand. There is a good demand for mules at good prices, and but few on the market.

The cattle market opened fair last week, with heavy receipts and decline in prices. Best butcher stock from $5 to $10; medium 3 to 4; common 1 to 2. There was a slight decline in good cattle the last of the week.

The hog market opened with good offerings and a fair demand at 4 and 5 for best grades, and 3 and 4 for common to fair.

The sheep and lamb market was dull with good offering of old sheep, at 3 and 4 for the best, Lambs 4 and 4 for choice, and 3 and 4 for common.

The tobacco market was active with no material change in prices. The offerings and demand was fair. The receipts for the week were 1,162 hhds.

The wood market remains fair with but little doing. The prices remain stationary at last quotations. The grain market remains firm. The receipts of wheat were light, with a fair milling and shipping demand at $1.10 and $1.15 for red, and $1.20 to $1.30 for amber and white on arrival. There is a good deal of damp grain coming in at 60c and $1.00 per bushel. Oats are quiet without change in price. Corn remains firm with little change. Rye brings 55 and 60c on arrival. Barley remains as last quoted. Hay unchanged.

The poultry and produce market was very good. There was a slight decline in eggs. Good fresh eggs are worth 9 cents. Choice butter 10 to 18c. Old chickens $2.50 to $2.75 per doz. Spring chickens $1.25 to $2.00.

Potatoes have declined 25 to 40c on the barrel. Onions have also declined 40 to 60c on the barrel, and the market is overstocked at $1.25 to $2.00 per bbl.

Roasting corn has declined largely, the market being stocked at fifty cents a barrel. Tomatoes have fallen from $1 and $1.25 per bushel to 15 and 25c per bushel. Cabbage grain at 40c to 50c per barrel. Sweet potatoes have declined and are readily had at $3 and $3.50 per bbl. Cucumbers are plentiful at $1.50 per barrel. Pickle cucumbers at $1 per bushel.

Egg plants bring 25 cents per dozen. Fruit market is still with no material change in prices. Plums $1.50 to $2.00 per bushel. Choice peaches $2 to $3 per bushel. Cantelopes $4 and $5 per barrel. Watermelons 15 to 20 cents per car load. They retail from 40 to 60 cents.

P.S.—Farmers and others desiring special information or particulars of the markets will receive prompt and reliable replies by addressing our correspondent, F. M. F., care road 20 Courier-Journal building, Louisville, Ky.

Do you take The Sunny South?

If not, send for it immediately. It is the universal favorite, and all Southerners are proud of it. Let a large club be raised without delay in this community. It is the only illustrated literary weekly in the South, and the press and people everywhere unite in pronouncing it the equal in every respect of any similar publication in America. The best literary talent of the whole country, North and South is writing for it, and it has something each week for all classes of readers. Its stories are superior in literary merit, and equal in thrilling interest, to those of any other paper, and its essays upon all subjects are from the best minds of the age.

In addition to thrilling new stories, a series of brilliant articles will soon begin on the CAMPAIGNS and BATTLES of the ARMY OF TENNESSEE, by COLONEL B. W. FROBER, a distinguished military engineer of the army, and all its trying times. These papers will explain all the movements of Generals Johnston Hood and Sherman. Don't miss any of the numbers. They will read like a fascinating romance.

New and exciting stories are beginning every week or two.

State and local agents are being appointed everywhere, but let each community form a club at once and send on for the paper. Having passed successfully through two of the hardest years we shall ever see, it only challenges the admiration and unlimited support of the people. The price is $3 a year, but clubs of four and upwards get it for $2.50. Address J. H. SEALS, Atlanta, Ga.

TERMS.

We club with the Hartford Herald, and for $4.00 you can secure your home paper and our great Southern literary journal, better known as the Sunny South, in this community should sustain.

JOHN P. BARRETT, Editor Hartford, Ky.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 5, 1877.

Little Ernest Tracy was kicked by a mule yesterday morning. Not seriously hurt, though.

Rev. W. P. Bennett held regular services at this place Saturday night and Sunday morning.

There will be church conference at the Methodist church, to-night. Everybody is invited to attend.

Miss Mary Taylor left for Shelbyville last week, where she will attend school for the next ten months.

Misses Carrie Gibson and Ella Willis returned Saturday last from a two week's visit to Ceraulo, Ky.

Mr. Peniel Jones, of Ceraulo, made a pleasure visit to this place Friday last, returning home Saturday.

The thanks of the Herald corps is due Messrs. Wm. Phillips and Armistead Jones for treats to the watermelons.

If you want fresh, pure drugs, buy of W. H. Murrell, Beaver Dam, and don't throw your money away on refused goods.

If you want to be cured of the fever, ague and chills, go to W. H. Murrell, Beaver Dam, and buy a bottle of Malaria for 75 cts.

Our "devil" says he wishes he was a great big child, so he could seize hold of some pretty young lady and shake her out'n her chins.

An exchange says: "A female is a lass until she reaches the age of fourteen." This accounts for the immense quantity of "lasses" in the land.

Rev. James Barrett will preach at the Methodist church in Hartford next Sabbath at eleven o'clock, a. m. Subject: "Resurrection of the Dead."

Mr. James N. Patterson, representing the Hubler-Stamp house of J. F. W. Dorman, Baltimore, has been in town for several days past taking orders.

Mr. Eugene Hall, formerly of this place, now of Utica, Indiana, accompanied by his wife, was visiting his mother, Mrs. Emily Hall, last week.

Cyrus Gates, Esq., the popular and gentlemanly representative of the wholesale hat house of Bredford & Co., Louisville, was in town last week.

Dick Rosenberg will arrive in a day or so with his immense stock of clothing. If you want anything in this line Dick will trim you out in first-class style cheap.

The merry peal of the school bells last Monday morning, suggested to the small boy that vacation was over and that he must take up his line of march in that direction.

Mrs. M. C. Daniel, of Cromwell, and Mrs. E. L. Wise, honored us with a visit last Monday evening. Mrs. Daniel added her name to our subscription roll. Thanks.

I have this day received from Cincinnati, 1 sack of Java, 2 of La Guayra, and 1 of extra quality of Rio Coffee, and will sell low for cash.

E. T. WILKINS.

Mr. H. B. Kinsolving, the gentlemanly clerk at W. C. Morton's, will please accept our thanks for "setting up" the "Blue-eyed Belle," the best cigar, according to our Havana tip, in town.

The proudest person we have seen for some time past, is a Hartford youth. He's just turned 'em out, and they're more of a Western town than a mountaineer, "extensively laid out, but thinly settled."

Misses Mattie and Marion Harrison, who have been sojourning in our rural hamlet for two months past, visiting their uncle, H. D. Taylor, returned to their home in Shelbyville, last Wednesday evening.

Mr. George Klein, of this place, has a row of beets that are hard to beat. They were raised without any cultivation, and the majority of them will measure twenty-four inches or more around, besides being of unusual length.

The Fair Grounds at this place, are being rapidly repaired. The company are adding a speed ring to the grounds which will be quite an attraction. The Fair will commence the 23rd of October and continue five days. The premium list and posters will be out in a few days.

Mr. H. P. Brooks, general agent for the Roebank nursery, Nashville, Tenn., is in town, the guest of the Hartford House. Mr. Brooks has six gentlemen with him who are canvassing the county and taking orders for all kinds of fruit trees. Those favoring them with their orders may rely upon their ability and promptness to fill them.

Among the many remarkable curiosities of the past interred in this county, the most interesting, perhaps, was brought to this office last Monday by Mr. John K. Oglesby. It is evidently an Indian pipe, of peculiar shape, turned of a dark red stone almost as hard as flint, and in a perfect state of preservation. The bowl of the pipe is about six inches in length by one in breadth and of a wedge-like shape. The hole intended for the stem is in the center of a circle 2 1/2 inches in diameter. At the lower edge of the circle, and extending down the bowl proper, is a fan-like appendage intended, no doubt, for ornament. The lower end of the bowl is pierced by a hole, intended no doubt to suspend the pipe by a cord from the neck. The pipe has a hand-some appearance, and is an evidence of the remarkable skill evinced in the many relics of a past people, who, at some period, inhabited the continent. This pipe is on exhibition at this office. Call and see it.

Prof. Rowden, of Jeffersonville, Ind., arrived to-day and will proceed immediately to reorganize the Hartford Cornet Band, and put them in tip-top trim for the approaching fair. Three new additions have been made to the band since its dissolution last fall. Messrs Clarence Hardwick, W. A. Gibson and Harry Jarboe, each of whom have a good store of musical talent. The following gentlemen compose the band under its present organization: Wm. Rowden, Clarence Hardwick, Jerry Williams, Harry Jarboe, L. F. Condit, E. P. Thomas, W. A. Gibson, Wm. Phillips, J. R. Collins, A. D. White and E. T. Williams.

Wade Daniel was up before his honor, F. P. Morgan, Police Judge, one day last week, for a breach of the peace, by assaulting one Warren Stevens. The jury, after hearing all the evidence in the case, came to the conclusion that Wade should pay the Commonwealth the sum of $10 and that he should board at the public hotel for thirty days. This seems pretty hard for a little knock-down, but when we consider that peaceable citizens are summoned from their vocations as jurors and witnesses day after day to try such cases, we think nothing short of the extent of the law will stop such proceedings.

Prof. W. L. Hawkins, who has been engaged to teach at this place, began his school last Monday morning. The Professor has had great experience in the training of children, and by his mode of teaching and conducting his schools, has become very popular as an educator. He is assisted by Miss Pradie Baird of this place, who has also considerable knowledge and experience as a teacher. Read his advertisement in this issue.

Masters Harry Taylor, Charlie and Ned Pendleton and Willie Maxwell, of this place, leave to-day for Russellville, to attend Bethel College. While we do not like to see the children of our town go to other towns and cities to be educated, but when such is the case, we know of no school that we had rather see them attend than the one above mentioned.

Hartford possesses an individual who most certainly "lives to eat." He's the champion of the Green river country in devouring watermelons, and thinks nothing of sending a twenty-five pounder to its long home, without even straightening up to belch. He says he can go 'em all backwater puddles in his eyes then lose their taste.

Mr. William Edwards, of McHenry, Ky., while trying to jump on the West end bound freight train Monday evening, fell and two cars run over his foot, mashing it very badly. Drs. J. E. Pendleton and J. W. Haden extracted all the bones of three small toes and four pieces of his ankle bone. His whole foot may yet have to be taken off.

Mr. S. Schneider, of the firm of Baer Brothers & Co., this place, left yesterday for the East, where he will purchase a large supply of fall and winter clothing, dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, etc., which added to their already large and elegant stock, will make the same complete.

Quite a spirit of improvement seems to have taken hold of our citizens, in the way of repairing and repainting their houses. Among the number this week we mention those of Mr. Z. Wayne Griffin and Messrs. L. Rosenberg & Bro. Both of whom have had the fronts of their business houses newly painted.

You who lead sedentary lives—Printers, Tailors, Shoemakers, &c., will find a great relief for the congestion from which you so often suffer, by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator. It is a simple, harmless, vegetable compound, sure to relieve, and can do no injury.

Col. O. P. Johnson and son, Johnny, of Owensboro, were in town Monday and yesterday, and were registered at the popular Lyon House. The Colonel pays a very high compliment to the Herald by pronouncing it the best county paper in the State.

Mr. E. Small and wife, of this place, left for Louisville last Monday evening to be present at the opening of the Exposition. Mr. Small, while absent, will purchase a large stock of goods for his fall trade.

Our readers will find in this issue a statement from Col. O. P. Johnson, Collector of this district, giving the total debit and credit of this office. If you will read the statement you will find exactly how things stand in this district.

"All the health I enjoy, and even my life I may say, is in consequence of Simmons' Liver Regulator. I would not take one million dollars for my interest in that medicine."

"W. H. Wilson, Welborn, Fla."

We know everybody will be disappointed on seeing the announcement that we won't attend the Exposition, but then it's a long distance, and we're not good on walking ties and rails, hence we'll have to abandon the idea of going.

Everybody that wants a No. 1 cigar must go to J. F. Collins' hereafter. It beats the Leader.

1877 FIFTH 1877
LOUISVILLE INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION

Opens September 4, 1877. Closes October 20.

GRANDER DISPLAY THAN EVER BEFORE

THE ART GALLERY will contain Masterpieces of the Foreign and American Studios, and present the finest contribution to Art ever exhibited in the West or South.

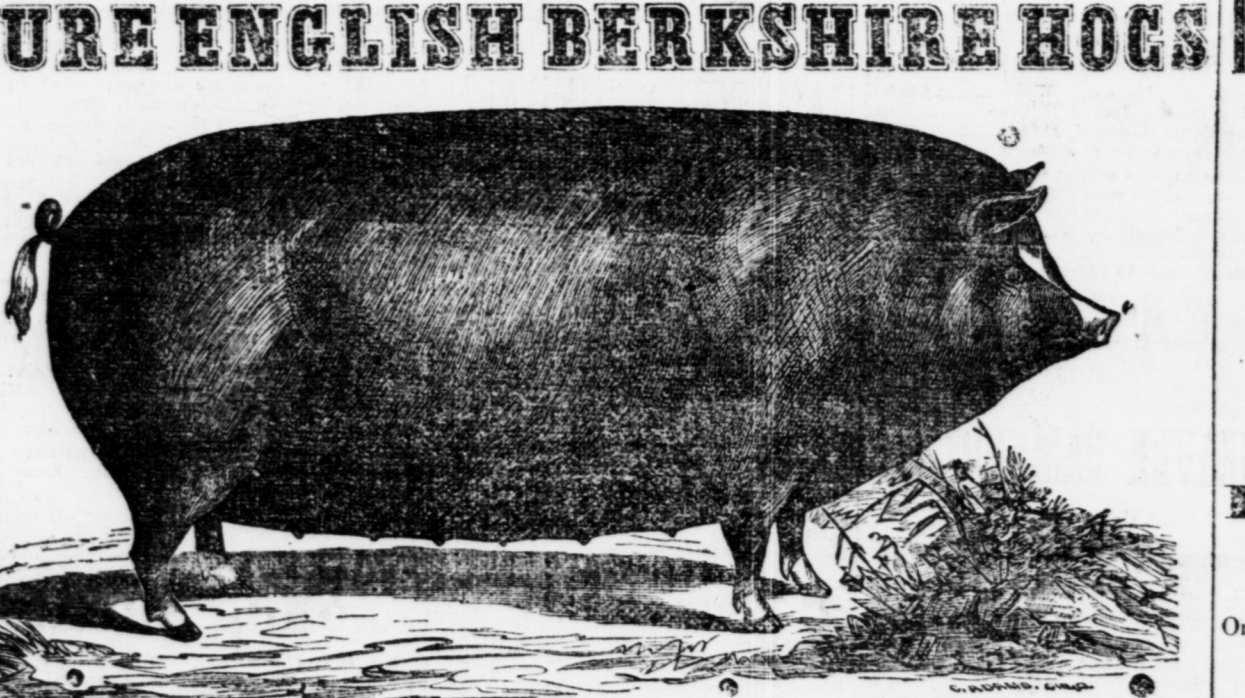

THE NATURAL HISTORY DEPARTMENT will surpass in value and interest that of the Centennial Exposition.

THE DISPLAY OF MACHINERY and MANUFACTURED GOODS will be greater than ever before.

Robbery in Calhoun.

On last Saturday night week, the store of C. P. Johnson, in Calhoun, was entered by a back window and robbed of about $10 in cash. A boy was arrested on Monday following under suspicion, and having been seen with too much money for a youth of his age, being twelve years old. We did not learn his name but understand that nearly all the money was recovered. We'll bet a three-cent cigar that the boy has been reading Beadle's dime novel.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of the late Hezekiah Ward, deceased, are hereby notified to present them, properly proven, to the undersigned, at his farm on No Creek, or to McHenry & Hill, at their office in Hartford, on or before the 25th of December next, or be forever barred.

This Sept. 3, 1877.

AS THE BEST FAMILY SEWING MACHINE.

The World-renowned Wilson Shuttle Sewing Machine

Has Unlimited Capacity to do all kinds of Family Sewing and Manufacturing.

ITS PATENT AUTOMATIC "CUT OFF" on the hand wheel prevents the machine from running backwards, and obviates the necessity of taking the work from the machine to wind thread on the bobbins, which must be done with all other Sewing Machines, to the great annoyance of the operator, especially in tucking, hemming and ruffling. It does one-third more work in a given length of time than any other Sewing machine.

WITH EVERY MOTION OF THE FOOT THE MACHINE MAKES SIX STITCHES.

A properly executed Certificate is furnished with each machine, guaranteeing to keep it in repair, free of charge, for five years. Machines sold on easy terms of payment, and delivered, free of charge, at any Railroad Depot in the United States where we have no Agents.

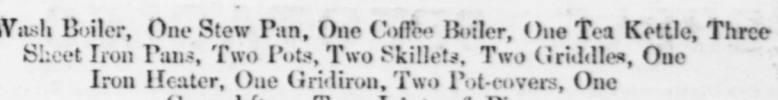

Send for Illustrated Catalogue. Agents Wanted. For full particulars address
